1. Executive Summary

This Report lists all media communication that was performed by the partners of the Europeana Newspapers Project consortium to raise the awareness and promote the projects by widely disseminating the projects objectives, results and its achievements among stakeholders and end-users in the first twelve months of the project.

The media communication of the first year has been analysed to draw conclusions, learn from good practices and identify the weaker points for improvement.

The analysis is followed by an outlook for the next twelve months in which the first Dissemination Workshop and Information days will take place. More results will come forth from the project to cover in the media communication, key messages will be defined, good practices in media communication need to be building on and weaknesses need to be improved.

2. Media Communication

To disseminate the projects objectives, results and achievements a mix of media communications were developed to be disseminated via project and partners' media, and social media.

2.1 Media Communication Channels

The Europeana Newspapers Project disseminates project objectives, results and achievements through project and partner media communication channels to reach the target audience. The target audience consists of stakeholders and end-users with interest in technical and content related issues that the project deals with. The target audience will be described in more detail in the upcoming Deliverable 6.3.3 Stakeholder Engagement and Media Communication.

2.1.1 Project Media Communication Channels

The project has set up the following media communication channels to promote the project and create an online reputation in line with the physical appearance of the promotional material that was developed. The visual appearance of the promotional material is displayed in the Deliverable 6.1.2 Promotional material.

2.1.1.1 Website

The Europeana Newspapers Website, <http://www.europeana-newspapers.eu/>, launched in April 2012, was developed as the main source of information from the project to the audience. The website informs the audience about the project objectives, results and achievements. The website publishes and also acts as a public document repository for project related outcomes (Deliverables, Presentations and Promotional Materials). The project partners all present the project on their website and link to the project website, as well as the project website presents all the consortium partners and links to their websites. The website as primary media communication channels of the project acts as a crossroad for all project social media channels. For detailed information of the website please consult D 6.1.1 Project Website.

2.1.1.2 Social Media

The project has developed its own social media accounts that the accounts of institutional and individual social media accounts of the Europeana Newspapers Project consortium link to. The social media enable the creation of an online reputation in a rather short period of time because they allow a two-way communication and profit from the reputation of the sender that uses this technology empowered word-to-mouth way of communicating. The project has the following social media accounts:

- Facebook site: <http://www.facebook.com/EuropeanaNewspapers>
Any important news of the project is announced at Europeana Newspapers FB site. Visual material of the project such as photographs and videos are attractive for dissemination through this channel. At this moment the FB page counts 205 “likes” and 31 posts.
- LinkedIn Group: <http://www.linkedin.com/groups?gid=4425919>
This social media channel is used to publish important news on the project. This channel can be easily linked to other professional LinkedIn groups from partners such as the LIBER LinkedIn group (1.381 members from the library audience). At this moment the Europeana Newspapers group counts 53 members and 10 discussions.
- Slideshare: http://www.slideshare.net/Europeana_Newspapers
This social media will allow the project to disseminate the presentations beyond the original event. The other social media easily link to the content deposited at the project slideshare account. At this moment eleven project presentations are uploaded to the project account.
- Twitter: @eurnews
Important news of the project or related to the project is tweeted through the Twitter account @eurnews. At this moment the account has 203 followers and sent out 364 tweets.

2.1.2 Partner Media Communication Channels

The partner media communication channels that the project disposes of have an international as well as a national and in some cases regional scope. This combination of channels consists of websites, mailing lists and social media channels. Links between project and partner media communication channels and targeted key-messages enable the partner media communication channels to conduct their audience to the project media communication channels and the website in particular. The international and national media communication channels are displayed in table 1 and 2.

3. Analysis

In this chapter the aforementioned media communication and dissemination activities are analysed with the aim to draw conclusions, learn from the activities performed and set objectives for the next twelve months. Three sources have been studied in the analysis of the media communication of the Europeana Newspapers Project:

1. The project dissemination activity
2. Google analytics for the project website
3. Social media activity

3.1 The project dissemination activity

In this first year the project has been presented at various events and conferences, ranging from library and university audiences interested in the content, to technical audiences interested in refinement, quality assessment and metadata models used to local and newspaper audiences.

The dissemination activities of all project partners aimed at widely disseminating the projects objectives and the results and achievements of the past twelve months. Table 3 shows the dissemination activities that took place, ranging from distribution of promotional material to the dissemination of news items to national and international audiences.

In the coming twelve months, the project will start to host Information days and Workshops to disseminate the projects objectives and achievements and facilitate a dialogue with the stakeholders.

3.2 Google analytics

The website was launched in April 2012, month three of the project. In these nine months the project had 4.439 unique visitors (Graph 1) and they made a total of 6.025 visits (Graph 2), 26,23% of the visitors is a returning visitor. The new visitor is important for the project because the awareness of the project is raised with this audience. The returning visitor is important for the engagement of the visitor or stakeholder; this visitor wants to be kept informed on the achievements and events of the project.

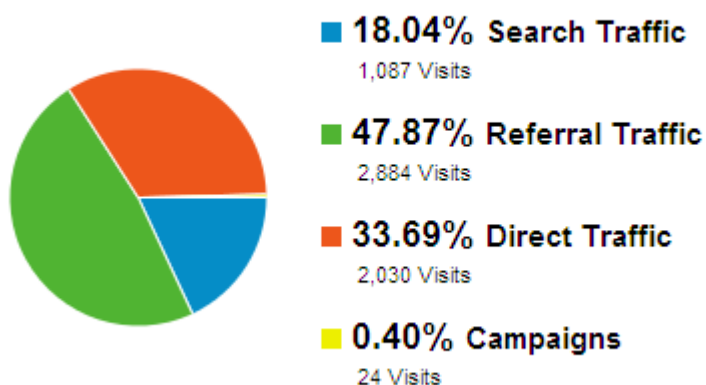

4,438 people visited this site

Graph 1: Number of people who visited the Europeana Newspapers Project website

Of these visits 33,69% came directly to the website, this means that they were informed about the existence of the project from the dissemination activities and were interested in learning more through the website. 47,87% of the visits came from referral traffic, this can be through the links on project partners' websites, through the project and partner social media channels or mailing lists from partners. The dissemination activities performed by the Europeana Newspapers Project and its partners are effective; they raise the awareness of the project and engage the audience in the project.

Graph 2: Traffic to the Europeana Newspapers Project website

The aim of the next twelve months is to raise the total amount of visits to the website by increasing dissemination activities in all its forms (Graph 3). The next twelve months the project will produce many interesting results that will increase media communication activity. Also the upcoming Information days and Workshops will need to be promoted before and during the event takes place. After these dissemination events there will be visual material and feedback to disseminate.

3.3 Social media analysis

The Europeana Facebook has 205 likes and 31 posts. The likes are visitors that want to be informed on the project results, achievements and events. This is important for the engagement of the audience. Graph 4a shows that the posts on the project Facebook page reach an increasing amount of people and that the posting of news-items increases the audience. Graph 4b shows that 60% of the visitors returns. In the coming twelve months, the Europeana Newspapers Project partners need to increase the amount of visitors by posting news items. The partners have to catch and maintain the interest of the visitor with high quality posts.

The LinkedIn Group for the Europeana Newspapers Project has 53 member and 13 posts. This shows that Facebook and Twitter are much more used in the Europeana Newspapers Project for dissemination. The aim for the next twelve months is to increase the activity and audience on the LinkedIn group by posting more discussions and sharing them with larger LinkedIn groups such as LIBER (over 1.300 members).

4. Outlook

In the second year of the project more results and achievements will come forth from the project to disseminate than in the first year, this will result in more presentations at external events, more media coverage and more social media activity from the project.

Not only will there be more results to cover but the first dissemination Workshops and Information days will be held this year. These events need to be promoted and will produce interesting content and visual material for the promotion of the project afterwards.

The aim for the second year of the project is the overall increase of project dissemination, media coverage and social media activities. Partners need to be encouraged to get even more involved than the first year.

Not only does the media coverage and social media activity need to be intensified, it needs to be more targeted at the different audiences that the project aims at. This will be achieved by communicating key messages targeted at the specific audience. These key messages and the specific audiences will be outlined in the upcoming Deliverable 6.3 Stakeholder Engagement and Media Communication Plan.
